Including excerpts from "Genealogical and Personal Memoirs Relating to the Families of Boston and Eastern Massachusetts" Volume III by William Richard Cutter - 1908

Note: John Ham (1649-1727) of the Daniel Ham Family is noted in some early publications of New Hampshire's history as "a family member of the Pioneer William Ham", but was likely a nephew or cousin as he was not mentioned in William Ham's Will as a direct heir or child. John is often noted on family trees on Ancestry.com and other research sites as a son of William & Honor Ham, but the alleged connection remains to be confirmed with supported documentation and is not included in this document. However, as fate would have it, descendants of these 2 family lines, Helen Marguerite Ham & Alton Maurice Littlefield, would eventually marry in Hartland in 1932 as noted below.

William Ham I

b. 1597 Scotland (Living in Plymouth, Devon County, England when he immigrated)

d. 26 Jan 1672 Portsmouth, New Hampshire at 72yrs

m. 22 Nov 1622 St Andrews, Plymouth County, England

Honor Stephens

d/o William Stephens & Mary Woode

b. 4 Feb 1601 Plymouth, England

d. 11 Nov 1667 Portsmouth, New Hampshire

He was granted 50 acres of land and settled at Ham's Point in Portsmouth (later known as Freeman's Point). The property would eventually become part of the home of the White Mountain Paper Company.

"William Ham, the first immigrant ancestor, was, according to family tradition, of Scotch ancestry, but he came to New England from Plymouth, England in June 1635, in a company sent out by Robert Trelawny, a merchant of that city, who was granted land and rights in Maine by (Sir Fernando) Gorges. This grant included Richmond's Island and several thousand acres of the main land between Sperwick River and Cape Elizabeth, just below Portland. Trelawny belonged to an ancient family whose seat was at Ham or Hame in Devonshire. It is surmised that the Ham family took its name from this place but no records are found to substantiate this assumption. Trelawny sent the first company to Maine in 1632 in charge of John Winter, to hunt, fish and trade with the Indians.

Ham came with Nares Hawkins and others in June 1635, working for Trelawny on shares and wages. Hawkins was the chief colonist in charge in the absence of Winter, and in a letter dated June 29, 1636, he names six men who came with him, Lander, Ham, Bellen, Clark, Frethye and Symons. These men were dissatisfied, claiming that Winter and Hawkins had cheated them. In June, 1636, they left Falmouth and went westward to Portsmouth. Winter wrote reporting their leaving June 28, 1636. These names were William Ham, Oliver Clark, John Bellin, William Frethye and John Symons (Simonds).

William Ham was in Exeter as early as 1646. In 1652 he had a grant of fifty acres of land in the adjacent town of Portsmouth, where he probably lived most of his life after 1636. His homestead was at Freeman's Point, called Ham's Point until 1833, when the widow of Benjamin Ham sold the remainder of the homestead to Peyton R. Freeman. This point is just above the Portsmouth Bridge, on the road to Kittery, Maine, a place of beautiful scenery.

Ham built a house which is now or lately was standing on the point. He owned Noble's Island, also called after him, Ham's Island, until recently. He had in his home lot sixteen and three-quarters acres of land, and he was assigned to the first squadron in the division of the inhabitants into garrisons in 1633. From 1658 to 1666 he was a subscriber to the fund for maintaining the minister."

It appears, albeit undocumented, only 1 of William's 5 known children, Elizabeth, was still alive when he wrote his Will in 1672, however there may have been unknown circumstances which circumvented some of the other children's inclusion in his Will. His eldest child, Mathew Ham, died in 1664 as noted below.

In his Will, as seen below, William bequeathed most of his estate including his house and a large portion of his land to his grandson William Ham II, eldest son of William's eldest son, Mathew Ham, as well as making him Executor of his Will. He left other smaller portions of his land to two of his other grandsons, Thomas & John, also sons of Mathew. To his daughter Elizabeth (Ham) Cotton, wife of William Cotton, he left an allowance for her and her children and a red cow.

For reasons unknown, William made no mention in his Will of his 4th grandson Matthew Ham, a brother of the 3 grandchildren mentioned above, even specifically noting his "other two grandchildren" in his Will instead of 3 other grandchildren. Matthew however would be deeded a portion of the family land owned by his father by his older brother William in 1677 as noted below.

In accordance with his father's will, the property was entailed to William Ham, the eldest son of Mathew, through four or five generations. Mathew's widow survived him.

d. c1841 Arundel (Kennebunkport)

He received a land grant by 1780 following his service in the war. The grant did not name a location but it is likely it was in Arundel and would explain why he moved there. He was a Private in the war and was 'hired by the town' and had received 100 acres of land according to Kennebunkport Vital Records. He was listed in the 1st Federal Census of 1790 living in Arundel. Margaret was noted in the 1800 Census in Arundel as “Widow Ham”. (See bottom of page for partial DAR Application Lineage)

Revolutionary War

She remarried to Andrew Staples and applied for Revolutionary War Veteran's Widow Compensation noted as Margaret Staples, Widow of Joseph Ham, on the pension report with her last payment received in March of 1841, presumably before her subsequent death before a September payment was due to her.

Arundel was originally part of the greater Kennebunkport region first known as Cape Porpoise from 1614 to 1719. It was renamed as Arundel from 1719-1821 then as Kennebunkport from 1821-1915. Portions of it were incorporated as North Kennebunkport from 1915-1957 then renamed as Arundel.

Samuel and his sisters, Margaret & Mary, sold the inherited portion of their father's 100 acre lot in Arundel to their brother Timothy in 1808 with the deed noting Joseph Ham as their father. Samuel & Shuah were living in Harmony by 1809 before moving to Cambridge soon after C/1820.

"Samuel Ham, the first of the name to come to the town, came from Kennebunkport to Harmony nearly 100 years ago, and soon afterward to Cambridge, where he settled on Ham Hill. He married Shuah Staples and they had 14 children, only the last three of whom were born in Cambridge. The old place is now occupied by Sumner Ham. The house is situated on the old county road from Skowhegan to Moosehead Lake. It is now the home of the fourth generation of the family. During his life Mr. Ham worked to a considerable extent at the blacksmith's trade, making chains, axes, and all kinds of farming implements for the farmers in the vicinity. An interesting event to members of the family is the annual reunion, which is to be held on the last Wednesday in August. In 1910 the gathering was held at the home of Samuel Ham and 48 members of the family were present. In 1911 the place of meeting was the home of Ivan Ham in Cambridge." - Excerpts from the article "History of Cambridge" from 1911-1912 East Somerset County Register.
